DEATH BY DROWNING.

A magisterial inquiry was held by Mr. W. T. P. J. K. yesterday afternoon, at the Rose of Australia, Erskineville Road, when, in view of the circumstances attending the death of Mr. John Simpson Gordon, who was drowned by the upsetting of a boat in George's Bay Sunday morning. The following evidence was elicited: Frederick Baker deposed: I am a labourer, residing at Bannerrow Road; I have identified the body just before Mr. W. T. P. J. K. the body of John Simpson Gordon, now lying in his late residence close by; I have him alive on Sunday morning, about 3 o'clock; I first

M. Anders half an hour; I saw Mr. Ferris on, when we put him into it; we then took clothes off, and rubbed him; he did not show any sign of life, excepting, as I thought, that he turned; we continued rubbing him until we reached the house at Sandringham, where we found a doctor. The doctor laid him on the grass and rubbed him all over, and afterwards in a room for about half an hour; then gave it up as hopeless. Dr. Charles E. Watson deposed: I am a duly qualified medical practitioner, residing at Newtown; on the body I have examined, I saw no signs of life, and at about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, when I was at Sandringham I was informed there was a dead boy at Sandringham who had been drowned at the hotel; I viewed the body, and saw no signs of life, but made no particular examination; the body presented several appearances of effluvia by drowning; I was told that took no means to restore animation; I did not know how to do so," James M'Curdy deposed: "I am proprietor of the Prince of Wales Hotel, at Sandringham, where I reside; on 8 November morning about a quarter-past 10, I was informed that a man was drowning; I rushed down to the beach, and saw a body immediately placed the body on the green, and commenced rubbing it; they then brought it into a cottage adjacent to the hotel and continued rubbing with hopes of restoring animation, but without avail; I used a looking-glass, and found no breathing; everything got more and more hopeless, but without effect; I could not give up the idea of saving his life, but without success; I knew nothing of how the accident happened."

Donald Fraser deposed: "I am first lieutenant in the 1st Regiment of New South Wales Volunteer Infantry Battalion, stationed at No. 4, Creedon-terrace, Stewarts-side at No. 4, Creedon-terrace, Stewartsleft there in company with deceased, together, Messrs Heury, Ferris, Frederick Becker; Albert Andrus, in a boat for George's River; & the "Grante Becker's place in a boat which was going towards George's; they were proposing going to see nine or ten Indian houses, the first at about 7 o'clock; our destination; as we were going George's River, handed over charge of the boat to Becker; that we went at hour and a-half after daylight; that we reached the light between the river and San Juan, on the north side of the mouth of the river; that we saw the light of George's River (at that time engaged in sighting the hole of the mine underneath the boom) I noticed the water coming on the gunwale; I saw that several taken in too much to the stays, when she sunk and lay on her back, and I caused the boat to capsize; the first thing I noticed deceased, together with the four other gentlemen, was water; I laid hold of the water line, which appeared upon the full of water; I then called Mr. Ferris, and directed to Mr. Ferris to lay his finger in the hole to keep the water out of it; I then saw the cap of my cork bag, and found it; I then saw deceased hold of Mr. Ferris, Becker on the coast, and Mauders; part of the spirit; my attention was then most directed to Mr. Ferris after deceased, from whom I saw a black shadow, and I then saw the gallows; I then saw the keg, which had a capacity of six gallons, leave Mr. Ferris's hands; I called to catch the keg; he then made a spring, and laid hold of it again; at the same time deceased failed, and he was carried past by the force of the current before deceased parted from Mr. Ferris. I heard several gentlemen say to him several times, "Keep your eyes shut, you are swallowing too much water;" deceased said he was feeling feeling better, and he was, but after two or three strokes he lay down and went under the water. I saw him; he passed me about eight yards distant. I thought he was in his wake, until a dignified yelled by Mr. Donnell to rescued Barker and Manders, who were on board. Deceased Ferris then got hold of the bow of the dingy and was pulled up by the bow rope, pulled up by the bow rope, intention of picking me up," said to them, "Never mind me, I am all right, pick up Mr. Gordon; after you have put him into the large boat (which had come up in the time) you can then come back for me;" they did so and

The next day Mr. Ferris arrived at the hotel where he was staying and found the body lying face down on the sidewalk. The body was covered by a blanket and the head was covered by a hat. The body was found at about 9:00 a.m. and the police were called. The body was taken to the hospital and the doctor examined it. The doctor found that the man had been shot in the back of the head. The bullet had entered the head from behind and had traveled forward. The man had died instantly. The police were notified and they began their investigation. They found that the man was a stranger to the area and that he had no money or identification on him. They also found that the man had been seen walking alone near the hotel at about 8:00 p.m. The police were unable to find any other clues and they gave up the search. The case remained unsolved for many years.
